11:00-12:30	Session 2: Venture Capital - Is there a 'Chinese Model'? With the great success of venture capital investment in east coast of the US, the 'silicon valley model' has already been followed by VCs all over the world for its capability in nurturing hi-tech industry. However, whether there is any possibility of the existence of a 'Chinese Model' due to the uniqueness of the

	institutional arrangements? In fact, venture capital in China has been becoming a strong power in China's economy, especially thanks to the internationalization of local VC firms, as well as the localization of international VC firms. Consequently, the questions raised here are: what are the major differences of this market from the developed one? What are the essentials for the success in Chinese market? Is there an unique model for China Venture Investment? Great attention is being poured on the 'China's VC model' in this session. Chair: Mr. Wang Shouren, General-Secretary, Shenzhen Venture Capital Association

Dec.17th 2004 Venture Summit
9:00-10:30	Session 4: Venturing in China: Venture-Backed Nobles and Their Stories The 2003 Forbes-China's Richest has witnessed the success of those digital heroes like William Ding, Charles Zhang etc., where William Ding topped with a personal wealth as much as 7.6 billion. In 2004, more than 30 new venture-backed elites entered into another similar ranking list. These new nobles have accumulated their fortunes rapidly with more than 200 million in average since 1995 with the supports of venture capital investment. When public eyes focused on the list, what the mass saw were the myth of heroes. However, for China's venture capital industry, the entrepreneurs are the ones who witnessed and, are still witnessing the growth and the issues of the market. Chair: Mr. Hugo Shong, Senior VP, IDG and Vice Chairman, IDG VC

Dec.17th 2004 LP Summit
14:00-15:40	Session 6 Investing in China: Let's talk about the Real Return China's venture capital industry has finished the first funding cycle since 1998. The return rate is probably the most objective measure of the gains and losses of the industry. So, what is the real return rate of China VC firms? How about the performance of foreign VC firms, the new-established funds and the local VC firms respectively? Whether the return of VC industry in China is higher than that in other regions in the world? Sharing the information about their real return rate and the inside stories with you, the leading venture capitalists will show you a real picture of China's venture capital industry. Chair: Mr. Roman Shaw, President & CEO, DragonTech Ventures Group

15:40-16:00	Coffee Break

16:00-18:00	Session 7: China's venture capital market in LP's eyes With the improvement of venture environment in China, foreign VC companies are entering China in a big way. The fund suppliers, LPs, are also gradually paying attention to VC funds focusing on China market. They are not only of those traditional fund of funds, but also of high-tech MNCs, who are acting as LPs to indirectly participate in China opportunity. Of the active foreign VCs operating in China, there are some 20s are in the process of fund raising now. But, what's the real picture of local VC market in the eyes of overseas LPs? Whether they consider current time as the best time for entering China's market? What kind of criteria LPs are applying when they are screening funds for investment? What kind of GPs are their favorites and how they make their decisions? The views from LPs will inspire GPs in a remarkable way. Chair: Mr. York Chen, President and Managing Partner, Acer Technology Ventures Asia Pacific Ltd Keynotes Address Ms. Patricia M.
